Last week, a new family moved into the building. Everything seemed normal at first, but we started hearing some metallic sounds. We thought they were just decorating some furniture but then, they came and asked us some of our information. They did that to every other neighbour and their voices were really deep and strange, like robotic voices.

Whenever we invited them to have dinner with us, they refused. Then things got more and more weird. Neighbours went missing, and there were more and more metallic sounds, and the family didn't even seem to eat anything! And finally, I became suspicious of them, so I decided to sneak in their house while they were away from home.

When they were outside asking for more information, I snuck in their house. What I found was really surprising. I saw a lot of sockets, the entire map of the town, a lot of boxes of metals, some light bulbs and the most surprisingly, a gun! I also checked their basement and I found all the missing neighbours!

I untied them and found out the mysterious family were spies, and the scariest thing was that they were actually robots! They were on a mission to kidnap all of the people in the town and brought them to a base for experiments and researches. I needed to stop them from kidnapping us. I had a plan. I had to take away all the sockets and metals so that they couldn't charge themselves or eat and would run out of batteries and couldn't function.

So, I took away all sockets and metals and they ran out of battery very fast. They couldn't complete their mission anymore. A few days later, a very fancy car drove to the town, and they took away the 'dead' robots. Finally, the town was safe again.
